Version 1
Typographic Hierarchy

I used scale as the primary hierarchy. I want the user to be able to quickly see the temperature for today and the rest of the week at a glance. For the 4-day forecast, I also used slight differences in scale to differentiate between lower and higher temperatures.

All other non-temperature information is shown in smaller text. Here, I used weight to distinguish parts from the other even though they are all the same size.

Version 2

Emotional

In this version, I wanted to play with weight as the primary hierarchy rather than scale. I therefore bolded all the numbers I deemed important. Even when I took away all punctuation and spaces between words, I found that I could weight to bring hierarchy and differentiation between words.
